Channel Vision Releases New DVR Kits

DVR Kits with cameras provide money saving options for installers

COSTA MESA, CA. June 17, 2011 —Channel Vision, a leading provider of technology for the Well-Connected Home™ has released two new DVR Kits to its line of surveillance solutions. Adding to its successful Hidden DVR Kit (DVR-43GKit1), are its DVR Kit - Outdoor Cameras (DVR-43GKit2) and DVR Kit - Indoor Cameras (DVR-43GKit3).

All DVR kits include a 4-channel DVR that utilizes the latest H.264 digital compression technology to improve video streaming capabilities and reduce the storage space needed to archive recorded video. Included with the DVR Kit - Outdoor Cameras is a 500 GB SATA hard drive for video recording and four (4) high-res, outdoor IR Bullet Cameras (6026) with power supplies. The DVR Kit - Indoor Cameras also comes standard with a 500 GB SATA hard drive for video recording and includes four (4) high-res, indoor IR Dome Cameras (6126) with power supplies. Both camera options provide 540 lines of resolution.

These kits provide the essential equipment to do a basic camera installation at a value-price. “By kitting together our 4-channel DVRs and selected cameras, installers are able to take advantage of a tremendous price break to help them better compete with kits available directly to consumers through warehouse and big box type stores,” noted Darrel Hauk, Channel Vision’s President/CEO.
